Why work with IES?

American industry is vital to the strength and stability of our country. We need a reliable and productive energy sector to power our homes, our transportation, our economy, and our national security. We need water plants to produce clean water, and food and beverage plants to feed our people. We need steel for roads and bridges, as well as aircraft carriers and tanks. We need lumber, panel products, bricks, and shingles to build our homes, offices, schools, hospitals, and churches. American industry not only provides vital products, but also contributes to the safety, stability, security, and prosperity that benefit American families and the rest of the world. And now more than ever, industry relies on technology with innovations evolving at a faster pace than any time in human history.

Industrial Electronic Supply, Inc. (IES) is committed to contributing to the success of American Industry by delivering the technology and support to keep customers thriving. Customers trust IES to deliver innovative and cost-effective solutions to industry's challenges. They also rely on IES to provide guidance and assistance as they adopt new technology – empowering self-reliance, productivity, and competitiveness.

IES has been supporting customer success in this way since 1963. During our first six decades, IES has evolved with changing needs of industry to specialize in automation, controls, drives, instrumentation, and power distribution solutions. Our continued organic growth over the years has led us to expand to nine brick and mortar locations across five states. Today, IES remains proudly independent, family owned and operated, and uninfluenced by private equity or quarterly stock market valuations.

In addition to the latest technology, you can count on IES for friendly, personalized service. We take good care of our employees, many who have been with us for decades. We treat our customers fairly and like souls, not just transactions. We partner with world-class manufacturers who make quality products, to offer you a wide selection of the items you need. We make it easy to reach us. All calls are answered by a live person – no automated menus. Your request is our priority.
